Biography:

Braxton Fuller is an American contemporary artist (b. 1992), based out of Kansas City, Missouri. With a unique artistic journey that began as a poetry writer, he has since evolved into a creator of thought-provoking text and symbolism art. Braxton's innate ability to express himself through language gradually led him to explore the visual realm, where he discovered the power of symbols in enhancing his artistic expression. While there is no direct translation for the symbolism work, he employs, Braxton's intention is to evoke genuine emotions within the viewer, encouraging them to deeply experience the present moment. Each artwork represents a significant period in his life, serving as a visual conduit through which he communicates his personal journey and emotions. Using various mediums, Braxton's bold symbols and witty text work serve as a constant reminder of the importance of effective communication in our lives. At present, Braxton has shifted his focus back to text-based artwork, leveraging his experience and knowledge to make a profound impact in the art world.
